Water Restrictions Imposed In Sidney

Users of the Sidney Waterworks District water supply are asked this week to conserve all water. Restrictions have been placed on the watering of lawns and gardens until further notice.
Water levels in the wells are much below normal for the season and with the lowest peak month of September approaching, trustees of the waterworks decided at a meeting on Monday night, to place the restrictions.

In a statement made this week H. J. McIntyre, chairman of the board, urged that customers of the community system do all that they are able to assist the board by voluntarily abstaining from watering lawns. "It is only through the co-operation of the users that such restrictions become effective," he said.

WORK PROCEEDS ON DRAINAGE

A seven-man crew, under D.
Cosco, of the firm of Cosco & Sons, Vancouver contractors, is now at work excavating for the installation of the first unit of the Sidney deep drainage scheme.
Work is now being done at the outlet in the sea at the foot of Second Street.

This work must be completed this week, according to the contractor, as the prevailing low tides enable workmen to lay the pipe at its outlet without the inconvenience of the sea encroaching in the excavation.

Outlet of the drain will be approximately ten feet beyond the water level at low tide.

Heavy machinery is expected to arrive in Sidney soon. When the installation of the cement pipe at the outlet is completed, straight excavation work will be carried out and the vitrified pipe laid.

Crowds Attend V-J Day Community Concert

A large audience at the Canadian Legion Hall, Mills Road, enjoyed a concert staged by the Salvation Army Red Shield Concert Party on Wednesday, Aug. 15.
The affair, organized by the local Canadian Legion as a community celebration of V-J Day, was attended by residents from all parts of the district.

During the evening Piper Capt.
Wilson piped returned men and women present through the hall and to the stage where they were introduced to receive an ovation.

A. Sansbury spoke briefly and told of the great feeling of thankfulness which was present in all hearts when the great news of the cessation of hostilities arrived. He also thanked the concert party and the assisting local artists for their services.

Two outstanding entertainers who assisted at the community gathering were Mr. and Mrs. L.
Gaze and Clement May.

Mr. Gaze, accompanied by Mrs.
Gaze at the piano, sang two songs.
The first "Nuzzin' To Say," a humorous song in dialect, and a tender little ballad "Our Little Home." Skill and artistry were evident in the rendition of both songs, the first causing much laughter and the second quieting the audience as the beauty of its expression carried the story of the song to the rapt listeners.

Mr. Clement May, in humorous monologue, kept his listeners enthralled as he skillfully told anecdotes of his adventures in the film-making colony in Hollywood and other stories. Mr. May closed with the recitation of a speech from Shakespeare, King Henry's speech to his men before Harfleur.

Mrs. J. Wakefield was accompanist for community singing which followed. After the concert dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

Experts To Judge At Saanich Fair Named

With the approach of the date for the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society's 77th Annual Fall Fair and Exhibition, Sept. 3, much interest in the many events is being shown.
It is expected that a particularly strong showing will be made in the saddle horse class. Always popular, this class has a strong appeal for both children and adults. The committee in charge, headed by Dr. S. F. Miles, include W. L. Williams, W. D. Michell and E. J. T. Woodward.

The following have signified their willingness to officiate in the judging at the famous fair, which, it is expected, will be the largest during the many years since its inception:

Horses, Jas. Wood, Cobble Hill; saddle horses, Kay Lang, Victoria, assisted by Ted Hawkes, Saanich; cattle and swine, George Challenger, Sardis; sheep, An-

Martin Neilson C.C.F. Candidate For Saanich

A widely representative meeting of C.C.F. members and delegates from C.C.F. clubs of the Saanich Provincial Riding met in the Douglas Street C.C.F. Hall on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 19 to nominate for the coming provincial election. A number of interested visitors from Saanich and Victoria were present.

Names placed in nomination were those of Mrs. A. Doyle, of Royal Oak, and Martin Neilson, of Keating. Both candidates spoke briefly on the serious economic situation of the years ahead and of the theory and practice of socialism as a solution to our social and economic problems. As a result of the ballot Martin Neilson was declared chosen to be the C.C.F. candidate for Saanich. The choice was then made unanimous. In formally accepting the nomination the candidate received enthusiastic applause from the convention.

The C.C.F. candidate, Martin Neilson, born in Manitoba, is 33 years of age. He is married and has three children. He is a bull and fruit farmer by occupation.

His interest in community affairs has been wide and active. He is a director of the Saanich Bulb Growers' Association and of the Saanich school board for four years and is a member of the Trustees' Association. He was the C.C.F. candidate for Saanich in the 1940 provincial election.

In the absence of Grant Mac-Neill, M.L.A., who was expected to attend as special speaker, Dr.
J. M. Thomas, C.C.F. candidate in the recent federal election, spoke on the underlying socialistic principles of the C.C.F. movement. Reference was made to the recent election in Great Britain as showing the trend of events and that the centre of capitalistic thought and the last stronghold of capitalism had shifted to North America.

In the business session a central campaign committee was set up representative of all clubs.
Dr. J. M. Thomas was appointed campaign manager. The meeting adjourned in a spirit of enthusiastic determination to win the Saanich riding for the C.C.F.

Official Explains Need For Deep Cove Change

Capt. H. D. Parizeau, chief of the Hydrographic Service of the Department of Mines and Resources, explained this week to a Review reporter the need for a change of name for Deep Cove district.

Capt. Parizeau emphasized the fact that unless the people of the community decided, of themselves, to make the change, the name would stand. The department is making a revision in existing maps and charts for the territory. "We must look ahead, not only for a few years, but for many years," said Capt. Parizeau.
When told of the sentiment of many of the residents of Deep Cove for the name he explained that those happy memories would still remain, even if the name was changed. . . . and a new generation would grow up with equally happy memories of the new name.
There were three Deep Cove place names on the same chart, the Captain explained, he had prevailed upon the residents in one of these Deep Cove's to change their name, thus two remained. The one is at Sidney and the other is in Vancouver Harbour.

The Vancouver Harbour "Deep Cove" has a post office and the name is thereby definitely fixed, said the surveyor. In explaining the rigidity of postal authorities in the naming of post offices he told of how Bamfield on the west coast of Vancouver Island was named after a pioneer resident, a retired sea captain, who was later murdered by Indians. "The correct spelling of this man's name was Banfield," said Capt.
Parizeau, "But due to a clerical error post office authorities sanctioned the name as Bamfield and the name stands." On all hydro-graphic maps, however, the true historical facts are recorded in the place name, which appears as Banfield.

There are 18 different Deep Cove's and Deep Bay's in British Columbia, and hundreds of North's . . . bays, entrances, inlets and islands. In all more than 2,000 names are duplicated many times on this coast. These duplications cause complications to arise among mariners and it is for this reason that it was suggested that the name Deep Cove, Vancouver Island, be changed.

Residents at Deep Cove, however, indicate that the change of name is not desirable. In a survey made among those who live in the area a Review reporter elicited the following replies: Mrs. H. T. J. Coleman, "Quite satisfied with the present name"; D. Sparling, "No comment"; J.

Copithorne, "I see no sense to a change of name."

Miss G. E. Moses, however, suggested that the Indians be consulted. "There is too much confusion in the mails with the two Deep Coves," said Miss Moses. "There are older and perhaps better names for the area."

Mrs. Pratt, The Chalet: "It has been 'Deep Cove' for so many years it would be a shame to change it."

Mrs. Wilson, Wilsona Inn: "We have had a lot of trouble with the mails . . ."

Business Men Seek Park

The Sidney Businessmen's Association will seek the reservation of five central lots on 4th Street for park purposes from the Provincial government.

With the great growth in the settlement of the surrounding area the need for such park space is becoming increasingly evident.

The lots sought are all on the east side of 4th Street, two are on the South corner of Sidney Avenue and three are on the North corner.

VICTORY DANCE AT GANGES

An impromptu dance, held last week at Mahon Hall, Ganges, was organized by the matron, Mrs. H.
I. Petersen, of the Lady Minto
Gulf Islands hospital, and Gavin C. Moutat, for the purpose of giving the residents of Salt Spring Island an opportunity of celebrating the cessation of hostilities.

The evening was enjoyed by nearly 20 persons; the hall was decorated with flame-colored gladioli and music was donated by Mr. and Mrs. W. Hogue, Mrs.
J. Redding, Stan Mitchell and Charles Smith.

In addition to dancing there was community singing in which all joined enthusiastically.

About $64 were realized and this sum will go towards hospital equipment.

SIDNEY GIRLS LOSE 3-11 TO VICTORIA TEAM

Suffering a heavy defeat at the hands of Bob Whyte's Adverts, Sidney girls went down 11 to 3 in a fastball game played in Sidney on V-J Day.

In spite of the heavy score the game was thoroughly enjoyed by all players.

Due to the great news of the day some difficulty was encountered in getting a home team in the field, many thought that the game was cancelled. Sidney girls were: Agnes Pearson, Iris Smeltzer, Phyllis Levar, Evelyn McMullin, Betty Burnson, Donna Kennedy, Norah Davison, Gertrude Brown, Joan Thomas.

COHOE RUN IN LOCAL WATERS

The coho run is on in Bazan Bay, according to reports from fishermen. James Island residents are getting good catches and local nibblers were successful over the week-end.

The fish follow the channel inside of the islands, past the spit on Sidney Island, through Satol-ite Channel and on up to their breeding stream at Cowichan.

men. Catchers were McBeth and ner, Clanton, A. Gardner, Lum-

...The Editorials...

WHAT KIND OF A COMMUNITY WILL SIDNEY BECOME?

Without yearning for utopias, one can reasonably ask of Sidney that above all else it be a comfortable and convenient place to live in. Our community should be a verdant, healthy place, a pleasure to the eye and mind of the beholder.

Breaking this down, it is clear that we need safe and speedy arterial traffic arrangements set apart from residential streets designed to discourage through traffic; ample and convenient parking facilities, particularly where there are office buildings, shops or theatres, lots of green space; parks, parkways, playgrounds and gardens widely distributed so that there will be play space handy to each family. Smoky factories should be as far as possible grouped on the leeward side of the town separated from it by a green belt. Each neighborhood, as also the community as a whole should have its quota of communal buildings; clubs, nursery schools, halls, recreational and cultural centres, etc.

A proud community should also have a centre: a big square and promenade adjacent to the Town Hall and main concert or assembly hall, which will serve as a focus of civil life and provide a worthy setting for public ceremonies.

While these dreams of a civic centre seem, at the moment, to be far off, it seems logical to assume that such improvements will arrive in days to come. The point is that we who live today must plan for the easier living of those who follow us . . . and that is why it is necessary now to discuss incorporation. With the degree of self-government incorporation as a village, or even as a municipality, will give us, we may then make plans for the improvement of the area. Soon now, longer evenings will set in, the call of the great outdoors will not be as great and thoughts will be turned to things other than the capture of large and delectable fish. May we suggest that the subject of Incorporation be discussed to the end that a broader knowledge of what that happy state entails will be with us when the next public meeting is called to more fully go into the matter.

BOARD OF TRADE

In September the Sidney Businessmen's Association will again commence their regular monthly meetings. With all due deference to the business men who comprise this group, which, incidentally, is the only organized association devoted to the betterment generally of the civic aspect of the community (we bow with great respect to the police, of course) it has been suggested that the group enlarge its circle to embrace not only business men, but all who are interested enough in the North Saanich district to attend.

This seems to us to be by far the best way of guiding those in government with the needs of the district, which ostensibly the Businessmen's Association has done in the past. While there are those who will claim that the original idea of the association was for the business men of Sidney, it becomes apparent that the wider sphere demands representation. Such a body should rightly become a Board of Trade, sub-committees, such as the Retail Merchants' Committee would administer to the needs of the business men. The formation of a North Saanich Board of Trade this fall, embracing the whole of the North Saanich Peninsula would appear to be the sensible and sound thing to do. It is hoped that the Sidney business men will discuss this matter when they meet after the summer recess on the first Thursday in September.

CORRESPONDENCE

MEN OF FREE WILL?

Dear Sir:—Some how Canon Creal's "Thankfulness" rubs me the wrong way. It is difficult to criticize and not appear to be finding unreasonable fault. However, the Canon makes more than one statement which I call false. He says: "If we go back to the old way of national selfishness war will follow." Say rather, if we continue to be selfish we will have war. If Canon Creal is trying to tell us we unselfishly fought this war he is not correct. All North America had to be bribed to carry on war work. Even chaplains worked for the Glory of God at $6 to $10 a day and found.

The fact is our society—economics, religion—stresses individual as against collective well being. As this makes for greed we can not be a moral people. Economics and morals go together. Christianity must enter into our lives. Unfortunately we haven't decided what Christianity is. The general idea seems to be that we know what Christianity is, that it seems desirable, but is unattainable. That is foreign to my philosophy. I'm what used to be termed a whole-hogger: all or nothing. If a thing is good—materially, spiritually—embrace it. If no good, throw it out. Our better souls cry "half a loaf is better than no bread." The trouble is, it gets us into the habit of being satisfied with the half loaf. All over Canada today the cry is for security, rather than opportunity. Saving Security, the cry of fear. Refuge rather than spending. The Canon would have us believe we are men of free will, when in fact we do just what we are told to do and learn to like it. Morally, as a nation, the best that can be engendered in us is pity. Truth and beauty, and love dazzle us; and while the seed is there, there is no good earth that the plant may flourish.

I am reminded of a poem by Richard Middleton whom, though he killed himself, we crucified just as we did Jesus; and as we kill all our great teachers. I will take the trouble to copy, hoping you will find room for the poem. We "call our comfortable blindness faith." It always makes me weep. I am as guilty as hell! Just as are the rest of us.

I dreamt I saw a city of fair skies And fairer streets—a place of sweet desires, Whose citizens had wide and joyous eyes And hearts that yearned to heaven like tall spires; And as they walked in loud and mirthful bands, They sang and clutched life to them with glad hands.

Fine were they, too, of form; about them strayed Soft draperies through which their bodies shone Silver and gold and rose; and youth or maid Might see their bodies' beauty and love on; And men and women, old without regret, Dreaming of love fulfilled, were lovely yet.

And joy was there; in all the city's length I saw no fingers trembling for the sword; Matchless they doted on their bodies strength That they might gentler be. Love was their Lord For they had taken to their breast love's woes. And all their sorrow was a fallen rose.

And then I woke. Ah! God, that this should be! This mournful place where through the hateful mud Our children pass, whose hearts are for the sea, And for a world of dreams their leaping blood; Their eyes are dim beneath the brooding stars. Their hearts grow faint behind the prison bars.

And may I dream no more, lest when I wake To see the banner of the dawn unfurled, I hate our cunning for the children's sake, And dread the rotting slime that is our world; So let us dream not, praise life with our breath, And call our comfortable blindness faith!

This has been a great week for boat owners, with lovely weather and unlimited gas, what more could man desire. There was a great exodus at the week-end, with only a few more weeks of summer people seemed anxious to make the most of every moment. "Perata" all set for an ocean cruise was caught in a social whirlpool and only got as far as the gas dock.

Owen Fowler, his wife and friends were out all day on Sunday. "Midnight Sun" was out with a full load of passengers, in fact it would be quicker to list the people who stayed at home so empty were the floats.

The C.I.L. boat is in the water again with new ribs and planking. "Chickadee" is on the ways for painting. Mr. Privett's sloop was also painted and Mr. Styam has his boat up for alterations.

We had a visit from a modern Puss in Boots on Thursday. She walked down the wharf, climbed aboard "Koala" through an open port and introduced a family of three to the world. Her ideas of travel were cut short when Koala's owners arrived and put her ashore. She is now in temporary quarters waiting for her owners or some kind person to come and claim her.

Here is a story that made us smile: Said a lady, stepping aboard a steamer to a member of the crew, "Where is the Captain?" Said he, "The Captain's forward." "Oh I don't mind," she simpered, "I'm on vacation."

"MEATLESS DAYS" Australia Rationing

"Meatless days" in all public eating places will now start at four a.m. of each Tuesday and Friday and continue for the 24-hour period following, rather than the present 24-hour period which commences at midnight, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announces.

The revision in the order was made at the request of the restaurant trade and means that the period will conform with the normal hours of operation for restaurants, hotels and public eating places. It will enable restaurant operators to plan their menus for a full 24 hours from 4 a.m. through the late midnight meal period. This alleviates the problem which arose in all-night restaurants and cafeterias serving industrial workers on late shifts of having to change menus

Rationing in Australia is more severe than in Canada. Clothing and household linens are obtainable only by coupon. Tea is still on the ration at two ounces weekly. Butter ration is six ounces weekly compared to Canada's seven ounces. Meat has been rationed in Australia for a long time and varies from one-half a pound a coupon for the best grades to two pounds in the lowest grades. When Canada resumes meat rationing the allowance will vary from one pound of the best grade to three pounds in the lowest grade. Australia's sugar allowance is higher than in Canada.

Jim Cornish Tells Of Experiences In The Merchant Navy

Pulford Harbour.—Jim Cornish, of Vancouver, spent the week-end on the island visiting his father, R. J. Cornish, Burgoyne Valley, and his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Rogers, Ganges. Jim has served five years in the merchant navy sailing out of eastern Canadian ports to all parts of the world. For awhile on the North Atlantic convoys, when the U-boats were at their worst, at one time only 40 per cent of the convoys getting through. Then the Murmansk route with its perils and thrills. Jim speaks very highly of the Russians, and their hospitality when ashore there.

He was in Bombay, India, during the great explosion there, also in Calcutta during the Japanese air raid; went up the Mediterranean on a six-knot convoy with one of the most powerful escorts used during the whole European war, bound for Malta. Has visited every continent, and many countries therein, and sailed every ocean excepting the Antarctic. He was on leave in London during one of its worst air raids, and on short shore leave in England, narrowly missing a V-2 bomb and helped in the rescuing of its victims. After his present short leave he expects another long trip down the Southern Pacific from which he has just returned.

Prices of Canned Fruits and Vegetables

Prices for canned fruits and vegetables from the 1945 pack will be the same as in 1944, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announces.

A new order, effective Aug. 15, makes no change in prices but clarifies certain provisions of the previous order.

Canned soup and canned pork and beans are brought under the order for the first time this year. Canners' prices for these two items are held to the price charged in June, 1941, unless special authorizations have been issued by the board. Wholesale and retail mark-ups are limited to those taken in the basic period, provided they do not exceed maximums provided in the order.

keep it free from rubbish, garbage, refuse and waste.

In pre-war years the industry was estimated to be worth $20,000,000 to British Columbia "and may easily be worth $50,000,000 in the post-war period," Mr. Carson said. He paid tribute to those who had built it up, and said the Government Travel Bureau had been instrumental in organizing resort owners on a province-wide basis. The regulations were the outcome of organization, he said. They would not cause any hardship, because most owners would find their resorts already complied or could easily be brought into line.

All camps will be licensed by a board consisting of the commissioner and assistant commissioner of the game commission; the assistant deputy minister of lands; and a member of the provincial board of health. Within organized municipalities a registration fee of $1 a year will be charged. In unorganized districts there will be a fee of $3 for every camp with sleeping accommodation for 10 persons, plus 25c for two persons in excess of 10. It is intended to provide for regular inspection of all tourist resorts.

An exhaustive survey is also being undertaken to provide "a complete picture of our existing facilities and potentialities."

The Japanese Emperor

London commentators state that by "the prerogatives of the Japanese Emperor as a Sovereign Ruler" the Tokyo broadcast on Japan's surrender offer presumably refers to the Emperor's constitutional position. This is defined in Chapter 1 of the 1889 Constitution, form which extracts follow:

Article 1 — "The empire of Japan shall be reigned over and governed by the line of Emperors unbroken for ages eternal."

Article 2 lays down the rule for succession by male descendants of the Imperial House.

Article 3 states the Emperor is sacred and inviolable.

According to article 4, the Emperor is the empire, combining in himself the rights of sovereignty, and exercises them according to the provisions of the present constitution.

Article 5 says the Emperor exercises legislative power with the consent of the Imperial Diet.

Under article 6, the Emperor gives sanction to laws and orders them to be promulgated and executed.

Article 7 says "The Emperor convokes the Imperial Diet, opens, closes and prorogues it, and dissolves the House of Representatives."

Article 8 and 9 deal with Imperial Ordinances with the force of law that may be issued in an emergency.

Article 10 defines the Emperor's power of determining the organization of the central administration.

According to article 11, the Emperor has supreme command of the Army and Navy.

Article 12 says the Emperor determines the organization and peace standing of the Army and Navy.

Article 13 states: "The Emperor declares war, makes peace and concludes treaties."

London commentators point out that the framers of the 1889 Constitution, while apparently granting Japan a form of Government based on western democratic models, under article 11 deliberately gave the Imperial General Headquarters direct access to the Emperor. Provision was also made for the war and navy ministers, who must be officers of their services, to have similar direct access to the Emperor. Hence the Japanese government cannot issue orders to the Army and Navy, and any command to lay down arms must come from the Emperor personally, just as in 1936 his personal intervention was needed to bring about suppression of the Army mutiny. Regarding the divinity attributed to the Emperor, it is pointed out in London that the restoration of the Emperor in 1868, and the 1889 Constitution, followed a period characterized by varying degrees of local allegiance to feudal rulers, while the Imperial House, though venerated, had played no part in national life. In order to focus popular allegiance the new central authority, the Japanese leaders then began a deliberate process of indoctrination, whereby the Emperor, already endowed with a mystic aura through his remoteness from public affairs, should be conceived of in the popular mind as an almost divine being, descended from ancestors whose lineage was derived from the gods whom—myth declared—created Japan. The early Japanese animistic creed was combined with the deep-rooted custom of ancestor worship in the development of the new conception of Shinto as a state cult (as distinct from personal Shintoism), in which the Emperor, being a Constitutional Monarch, is also the supreme parent of the people and the priests who worship divine ancestors on their behalf. This conception so accorded with traditional popular beliefs, that now a great number of Japanese regard the Emperor as possessing divine attributes, while most others conventionally subscribe to this doctrine. London commentators stress it would be difficult in the last resort to estimate how deeply rooted these beliefs are, since they are largely the result of artificial propaganda for the past 80 years, and only partly based on genuine historical traditions; but that the Japanese tradition of obedience to the family and community finds a counterpart on the national level in loyalty to the Emperor—the father of his people. The following are brief biographical details of Hirohito. Born April 29, 1901, grandson of Meiji, the first of Japan's modern Emperors, he was educated at the Peers' College, which he left at the age of 13 for a specially-created "Institute of Learning," where he lived with his tutors. In 1921, Hirohito visited England in the course of a tour of Europe. In 1922 he became Regent, and in 1927 succeeded to the throne, choosing as his "reign title" Showna, which means "enlightened peace." He married Princess Nagako in 1924, by whom he has an 11-year-old son, Crown Prince Akihito, and four daughters. His public life has been described as that of "the firebrand of a ship which he has no power to steer." In private, he is known to be of remarkably frugal habits, while in attending to affairs of state he has the reputation of being a hard and methodical worker. In peacetime he used to devote much leisure to the hobbies of marine biology and mendicantism. He has invested heavily in Japanese industrial enterprises, the Imperial House possessing vast estates in addition to its annual income from the civil list.

IF through negligence on your part, fire should destroy even one forest tree, you would be responsible for depriving some family — perhaps in war-ravaged Europe, perhaps even in your own locality — of the shelter they so urgently need.

For years to come, the world will need all the timber that we in British Columbia can produce. A preventable forest fire this summer would be a calamity of the first magnitude.

It is up to every individual who lives near or uses our forests, to take every possible care in the woods. Do not throw down cigarette ends or lighted matches; do not make a fire in the woods or underbrush. Be constantly on the watch for fires.

If you spot a fire starting in or near a forest area, REPORT IT AT ONCE to the nearest Forest Ranger.

The "Dagger" Division Takes Mandalay

British and Indian troops of the 19th Indian "Dagger" Division, who captured Mandalay after a fortnight's heavy fighting, entered the city at the beginning of March after a dramatic surprise thrust from the Irrawaddy bridgehead at Singu, during which they covered 30 miles in 3 days over country so difficult that the Japanese command had not considered it a possible line of advance. BACK IN THE WOODLOT

Wood of trees that have died has less value as fuel than wood of trees cut green and properly dried or seasoned. For that reason nothing is to be gained by leaving in established woodlots and shelter-belts trees which are at a standstill, so far as further development is concerned.

The department of Agriculture says that woodlots and shelter-belts should be thought of as farm crops yielding a harvest within more or less definite periods, and, as such, new crops must be started occasionally.

MIGRATION INSIDE CANADA

Home-ties in Canada are tightly bound up in sentiment and a feeling that permanence is the way of happiness. The sense of security within the family circle is precious to us all, but depressions and wars have their way with us, and change has its way with us, whether we like it or not.

These thoughts come to me as I look over the figures on inter-provincial migration. Figures are pretty cold things, themselves, but there are stories that they tell to the imaginative eye. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, a few months ago, published some facts about how Canadians moved about their country between the years 1931 to 1941. So much happened during those ten years.

In 1931, for instance, we were deep into a depression that disheartened all of us, with prices falling with a sickening thud, the winds tearing up previous Saskatchewan soil that needed rain so badly, and with people moving to new places in search of a living. Families had to leave their friends and neighbors and make a new life for themselves. The depression dragged on through the '30s and we were only on the threshold of the '40s when war descended upon us. Many, very many of us, went into the armed services, and others went to the cities to work in war factories.

The Bureau of Statistics figures show that during the 1931-41 period Saskatchewan had the greatest number of people leaving to live in other provinces. As a matter of fact, 188,204 people left Saskatchewan, while only 30,659 came in. The net decrease in the population of Manitoba through migration was 48,478, Alberta 41,841, New Brunswick 10,177, Prince Edward Island

2,672, and Quebec 1,584. On the other hand, the net increase through migration in British Columbia was 82,498, Ontario 77,484 and Nova Scotia 7,848.

I wonder what changes the post-war years will bring.

FARMERS APPROVE GRADING

Recent meetings of Farm Forum radio groups have been stressing something that the Canadian farmer has been feeling for some time. And that thought is that the grading of farm products is an excellent thing.

The Radio Forum groups consider that grading is a prime safeguard against inefficiency in production. They readily concede that further improvements in the system of grading might enable producers to meet consumer needs more satisfactorily. They suggest, for instance, that grading practices should be more closely supervised, and that standardization should be on a national rather than on a regional or provincial scale.

These radio forums also vigorously repudiate the suggestion that price stabilization for farm products, if accompanied by a system of grading encourages inefficiency. Price fluctuations, in the past, they declare, made farmers gamblers rather than efficient farmers.

EXCHANGE AGRICULTURAL STUDENTS WITH MEXICO

A plan to exchange agricultural graduate students between Canada and Mexico has been proposed by Federico Sanchez, Dean of the Agricultural School of the State of Coahuila, Mexico. He recently visited Canada to select a herd of dairy cattle for the secretary of the Mexican president. He has made his suggestion to the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Mines Galore

From the outbreak of war up to June 13, 1945, a total of 20,129 mines have been swept by Royal Navy, Dominion and Allied minesweepers and German minesweepers operating under Allied control. This figure is exclusive of sweeping operations carried out by minesweepers of the United States Navy; and of the total figure 17,480 were enemy mines.

GIRL GUIDES TO ASSIST U.N.R.R.A.

Plans are being formulated by Girl Guide Dominion Council in Ottawa, for sending a number of teams from Canada to join Guide International Service already in Europe assisting in U.N.R.R.A. The group was invited to the use of Queen Margaret's school grounds, by the Principals Miss N. Denny and Miss D. Geoghegan. In the group are office workers, university students, nurses and teachers. Miss Margaret Hannah, Victoria, provincial head of Girl Guide training is in charge; Miss D. Illingworth, provincial commissioner; Mrs. D. New, Galiano, quarter-master, and Mrs. G. Somas, commissioner for Nanaimo are assisting.

Those chosen for the teams will have special training in courses appropriate to the country to which they will be assigned under the Guide International Service scheme.

Bloom on Bird

The dry, parched, wrinkled skin often seen in dressed poultry is largely due to poor handling between the farm and the processing plant. Fright, thirst, undue starving before killing, and shrinkage during transit destroy the sales appeal that dressed poultry present when the bloom is on the bird. To retain bloom, market poultry should be carefully lifted from the roosts after dark and preferably shipped at night. They should be given a normal feeding the night before and water right up to the time of killing.

TRUE STORIES OF CANADIAN WAR HEROES

By GORDON SINCLAIR
Internationally famous journalist and author of several best-selling books on war and travel.

As the war in Europe reached crescendo, bad weather gave the Germans time to dig into the Hochwald Forest before the Rhine, and there the Essex Scottish of Windsor drew the task of driving them out.

Battle plans said the Scottish would be led by tanks, but when mud bogged the armor down, the Scottish charged behind a barrage with the adjutant, Major Fred Tilston, in the lead.

Carrying Sten gun and grenades, Tilston attacked through the first of three defence lines and waved his men forward.

When shot through the ear he kept shouting, "Don't bunch up, lads... keep moving."

Before the second line Tilston was tumbled into a hole with shrapnel in both hips. Dripping mud and blood, he staggered to his feet and pushed forward.

As the Scottish fought through the third line the badly wounded commander limped from trench to trench encouraging the men, checking their defences and supplying ammunition.

Under intense fire he moved in and out of the German lines twelve times on legs so badly shattered that both were later removed.

When the Germans counter-attacked, Tilston sat on the parapet fighting them off with his Sten gun and urging his own men to keep their heads down.

When that charge was shattered the major led his men inside the forest where they dug in and held, until the rest of the brigade moved forward.

For this daring and gallant action, Major Frederick Albert Tilston, who had never before commanded troops in action, became the first member of the Essex Scottish to win the highest reward of a grateful Empire... the VICTORIA CROSS!

NEW IDEAS FOR BRITISH CARS

When car production gets going in Britain, some cars will use an entirely new form of transmission system, with no need either for the conventional type of clutch or gearbox. Control of the car will depend entirely on the accelerator. This new invention, which is entirely British and is known as a hydrokinetic transmitter, consists of a unit in which a form of flywheel, constructed with turbine vanes and ducts, rotates and is immersed in oil. Adjoining this flywheel and running concentrically with it is a two-stage turbine motor, which is coupled to an output shaft. The latter is coupled to the propeller shaft, which carries the drive to the rear axle and wheels in the usual way. When the engine is running, the vane flywheel, acting as a pump, flings the oil, in which the whole of the mechanism is immersed, tangentially upon the blades of the turbine motor. The kinetic energy thus created turns the rotor and transfers the rotation to the wheels. The faster the engine runs, the greater the energy available, and, according to the load and speed, so does this mechanism transmit the power at the correct torque ratio. The ratio is never higher than that which is actually needed, and its selection is entirely automatic. In this way the ratio is lowered when the car is climbing a hill, and is raised progressively when the summit is reached and the speed is increased.

Embodied in the transmitter is a simple mechanism which is brought into operation when the vehicle is to be reversed. It is brought into engagement by the movement of a small lever, which is the only control fitted to this transmitter. Cars fitted with this transmitter are said to have maximum ease in driving (no gearshift), operate smoothly, and are very economical in gasoline consumption.

BETTER POSTWAR POSITIONS

Better Post War positions will be obtained just in the same way and by the same kind of people who won the better Pre War positions. It is inevitable that with the return of more competitive conditions employers will be more exacting in their demands. And this simply means that boys and girls, men and women with the best and most practical training will secure the most desirable and best paid positions. No matter whether you pay for your own tuition or whether it is paid for by the government it is only common sense to get your training where the Staff, the Equipment, the Premises, Past Records and the Verdict of the Business World all assure you of the kind of real training that wins real jobs. We are enrolling Men and Women now under the Veterans' Training Plan and will be glad to give you all the details.
